The great Tree to his children said; You're getting alcopy, Yellow and Brown Yes, very sleepy, little Red; It is quite time you went to bed." Ah!" begged each silly, pouting leaf,

"Let us a little longer stay;
Dear Father Tree, behold our griof,
"Tis such a very pleasant day
We do not want to graway." So, just for one more merry day

To the great Tree the leaflets clung, Francised and danced and had their way, Upon the Autumn breezes swung, Whispering all their sports among. Perhaps the great Tree will forget And let us stay until the Spring, f we all beg, and coax, and fret."

But the great Tree did no such thing; He smiled to hear their whispering. "Come, children, all to bed!" he cried; And ere the leaves could urge their prayer He shook his head, and far and wide, Fluttering and rustling everywhere,

Down sped the leaflets through the air. saw them on the ground they lay, Golden and red, a huddled swarm, Waiting till one from far away; White bedelothes heaped upon her arm, Should come and wrap them safe and warm

The great bare Tree looked down and smiled; "Good night, dear little leaves," he said; And from below, each sleepy child, Replied, "Good night," and murmured, "It is so nice to go to bed."

The Scientific American, in an article upon the "Profits we Pay," gives the cost of manufacture of each part of a sewing machine and sums up the result of its investigations with this statement, "That the sewing machines that are usually sold from $65 to $125, cost from seven to fifteen dellars to manufacture, the average cost being eleven dollars and eighty two cents." Three manufacturers of sewing machines in 1873 netted $6,000,000 profits each, and the agents receiving even agreater profit than the manufacturers, making over $40,000,000 profits drawn from the farmers and mechanics of the country in a single year, by three sewing machines are thus taken from the producers of the country annually.
